

AT FIRST GLANCE ...

... nacworld is one of many social networks; a network giving its members the opportunity to exchange dialogue between each other and to display individual or communal media files. You will find communicative media and messages here – similar to facebook. However, the focus of nacworld is primarily on input relating to faith, the church and everyday life.

*Our no. 1:

nacworld isn't there to replace the personal contacts between your brothers and sisters in faith! nacworld does, however, provide long-term support in building, reinforcing, cultivating and maintaining these contacts.

LOOKING MORE CLOSELY ...

... nacworld brings more spirit to your congregation!

We have put some examples together here of just how you, as a MEMBER OF YOUR CONGREGATION, can make good use of nacworld:

■ Activity groups for your congregation

By creating “your congregation” as a group in nacworld, you, and all the members of your group, have the possibility of bringing ideas together for activities, which can be discussed and organised through blogs or messages – without taking up too much of your time.

■ Discussion groups and Bible groups within your congregation

There are discussion groups and Bible groups in many congregations. However, many brothers and sisters don't have the chance to take part in these groups (e.g. brethren who are sick, occupationally busy or families with small children). The nacworld website gives people the chance to form congregational-based discussion or Bible groups and so to have active contact with other brethren, where questions can be answered, with lots of flexibility; at any time.

■ Personal communication platform at congregation, district and inter-regional level

We all know about it – lots and lots of appointments! We often don't even have the time to have a quick chat with some of our brothers or sisters from our own congregation after the church service. It is always difficult to maintain contact at district level or with brothers and sisters from previous congregations because of time limitations. nacworld gives you the opportunity to search for members, to find them, to make contact with them and to communicate one-to-one, or in groups, through chat.

■ Divine service follow-up within the congregation

There may well be questions remaining after a divine service which we would like to discuss with someone. Many of our brethren live alone and don't have this opportunity. In an active congregation group, church ministers are able to answer general questions from the divine service participants and to look back at the service in a forum and/or chat. Members of the congregation, who are not able to attend because they are on holiday or are sick, would be able to read about the service – at any time, from any place.

There are many other ways, of course, to use nacworld. Your congregation is already active as a group in nacworld? Write to us about it – we look forward to your feedback at info@nacworld.net
